WE, Momus, merry monarch of all merry-makers, make it known that on Tuesday night next we will hold a grand levee at the old hall of our loyal Manner-chor, corner Second and Jefferson streets. Our droll subjects are commanded to appear before us in such court dress as their inney may suggest, and to do us homege by solemnly elevating both hands and holding them with fingers extended in front of their olfactory organs. It is further ordered, that after thus having paid their respects, they shall be possessed of the most hilarious hilarity and shall entertain us and our loyale people assembled by their merry antics. Our royal court band will be in attendance.

MOMUS, Rex.

Of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd-What They Do to Reclaim Fallen Women.

Their Success by Methods That Are Based on Rational Views Seconded by Spiritual Forces.

The religious order known as the Sisters of the Good Shepherd was founded at Caen, in France, December 8, 1641, by the venerable John Endes, founder also of the longregation of Jesus and Mary, a society of missionary priests, now generally known as the Eudist Fathers. Originally the title of the Sisters was the Congrega-tion of Our Lady of Charly, of the Refuge, their first house naving been named "The Refuge." The Congregation founded some small independent houses in adjacent cities, and its work went on quietly for nearly 200 years. The number of penitents in each house was fixed at from fifteen to thirty. In the year 1829 Mother Mary, of St. Euphrasic Pelletier, superioress of the House of Angers, begged permission to increase the number in her "penitent class" to sixty. This was granted; but still there were more applicants, and further permissions were asked and given. Now the House of Angers shelters more than 1000 "penitents," be-sides having charge of the juvenile female thorities. The House of Angers had been named the House of the Good Shepherd from an institution of the same kind, established in Rome, by St. Ignatius, a century earlier than "The Refuge" at Caen. Hence the title of Good Shepherd.

In the year 1835, his holiness, Pope Gregory XVI, erected the order into a Generalat, under the title of Our Lady of Charity of the Good Shepherd, appointing

EMBROIDERED LACE CURTAINS Paul, Milwaukee and other cities. In all cases the penitent must enter voluntarily or at least there should be no compulsion except by parental or legal authority. The means of government are simply system silence and an indulgent patience. The Sisters are often asked: "Do the penitonts ever really reform?" For answer, they can say that here in Memphis there are several, who, having entered when the house was first opened, in 1875 and 1876, are still with them, leading exemplary lives. In the older homes, eighteen, twenty-five or out exception, the close of life is full of a peace and serenity simply inexplicable ew Patterns in Embroideries, of ou
